The importations of gold to relieve the financial situation in New York foot up $50,000,000 with yesterday's draft on Europe's supply; it is aiding in restoring conditions to normal and one result is that stocks and bonds made good increases in price on the Stock Exchange——What was believed to be a bold plot to capture a train on which the Emperor of Russia was traveling yesterday from Peterhof to his Winter palace was frustrated——Secretary Taft yesterday took his departure from Manila and sailed for Vladivostok; upon leaving, there was a remarkable demonstration in his honor, school boys drawing his carriage to the dock and a long military, civic and school parade acting as escort; in an address, Secretary Taft expressed confidence in the future of the Philippines and complimented the legislative assembly——The trousseau of Princess Marie Bonaparte, the lingerie alone costing $80,000 was displayed in Paris yesterday——The big German balloon Pommern, which recently won the international race, sailed yesterday from Philadelphia, with Dr. Julian P. Andrew Cargenie probably has entirely abandoned his desire to "die poor." He has missed his chance in not trying to finance New York's panic.

William Randolph Hearst, if he has a mind to, can tell President Roosevelt that the Tammany Tiger beats a Mississippi bear in getting off with its whole hide.

A New England man is disappointed because he spent forty years of his life trying to fly. Disappointment comes to most men after they have spent forty years flying high.

The New York Republicans spurned that alliance with Hearst's Independence League. Some how or other what we call a man never did like a deserter nor the man that hangs out for a dicker.

A balloonist declares that he can land his balloon so easily that an egg would not be broken. Certainly not. Eggs are so high that a balloon doesn't have any chance to land on one of them.

Harry G. Washabaugh, a bigamist, committed suicide in jail at Washington, Pa., on Thursday. To have two wives to support in high price times, fully justifies Harry in getting cold feet in the bigamy game.

People who view with deep and peculiar interest the rapid advance of the Japanese in civilization will please make note of the newly discovered evidnce in the fact that the Japs have taken to drinking Scotch highballs.

The Pittsburg Post, referring to the financial situation, give this advice: "Don't carry a roll." We never do, in view of the fact that it always tempts us to be a high roller. The safest place for a man's money is in banks like all those in Wilmington.

The Newbern Sun's paragrapher articulates: "The world is all right. It is the most magnificent place we ever visited." Sounds like that is the admission of a man who has been rubbering and can't tell to save his soul which one of them is the prettiest.

King Yboski, of Aysbonia, Africa, offers to take $200,000 for his kingdom, together with his throne, crown, scepters, thirty wives and all his dominions and subjects. This may just be a scheme on the king's part to relieve himself of the worries of married life.

NEGRO'S FATAL SHOT

John Robertson Colored Killed by Isaiah Abner Early Yesterday Afternoon.

QUARRELED AT THEIR HOUSE

Injured Man Taken to Hospital and Murderer Made Good His Escape. Fugitive is From South Carolina—An Inquest.

In a two-story house occucpied jointly by the two, on Eleventh street between Market and Princess, yesterday afternoon between 1 and 2 o'clock, Isaiah Abner, a colored stevedore, who removed here recently from South Carolina, shot and fatally wounded Tom Robertson, also colored and a stevedore employed at the Clyde Steamship Company's wharf. The shooting took place at the foot of the stairs in the house, Abner standing some distance up the steps and Robertson on the floor, evidently turning away from his murderer. Directly after the two shots had been fired, one of them taking effect in the back just under the shoulder blade, ranging downward and passing entirely through the body, both men ran out of the house and the wounded man fell in the mouth of an alley where he was later found and sent to the hospital where he died a few hours later. Abner made his escape by running through the alley and jumping a fence a few minutes before Mounted Officer C. G. Jones arrived from the police station in response to a telephone message stating that a negro had been shot in the vicinity.

Sheriff Cowan was also soon on the scene and with Deputies W. H. Cox, A. T. Piver and others made a thorough search for the negro, but their efforts were fruitless. Last night Sheriff Cowan had a man stationed at Hilton Bridge, Smith's Creek Bridge and at the house of a brother of the fugitive who resides in this city. It is believed, however, that Abner has made good his escape to South Carolina. Both men are married and the dead man has several children. He is said to have been an unusually quiet man and those in the house tell the officers that they cannot account for the way that Abner did. Immediately after the death Dr. C. D. Bell, the coroner, went out to the hospital with a jury of inquest which will assemble today and inquire into all the circumstances connected with the shooting.

THE COMMITTEE CALLED

Truckers in Session Here Tuesday Will Take Up Transportation Matters With President Emerson, of Atlantic Coast Line.

A call was issued yesterday by President William E. Springer of the East Carolina Fruit and Truck Growers' Association, for a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association in this city at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, November 12th, for the purposhe of holding a conference with President T. M. Emerson of the Atlantic Coast Line, with reference to transportation matters, and especially with regard to alleged discriminations against local shippers of strawberries in favor of Tennessee growers.

At the annual meeting of the Association here August 20th, Mr. Z. W. Whitehead offered a resolution setting forth that whereas a recent ruling of the Inter-State Commerce Commission indicates that growers in this territory are paying higher rates on strawberries than are charged the growers in the Tennessee berry belt and that there is a discrimination against the North Carolina grower, that the Association resolve that the president be instructed to inquire fully into the situation and if the facts are as they seem, that the Executive Committee be instructed to take the matter up with the Coast Line officials requesting that the rates be lowered to a parity with those of Tennessee within 60 days from September 1st, and that in case of failure the president appoint a committee of five to seek redress from the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

This resolution was unanimously passed and a copy of the same was forwarded by Secretary Bauman to the officials of the railroad. From what the president has been able to learn there has been a seeming discrimination against the North Carolina grower and he has convened the Executive Committee for the purpose of discussing the situation fully with President Emerson.

The result of the conference will largely determine whether or not there will be a suit brought before the Inter-State Commerce Commission to correct any discrimination that may be found. Then there will be other transportation affairs to be settled and upon the whole the meeting will be a very important one.

Members of the committee who will be present for the conference Tuesday are President W. E. Springer, of Wilmington; J. A. Brown, of Chadbourn; J. S. Westbrook, of Mount Olive; J. A. Westbrook, of Wallace; and W. L. Hill, of Warsaw. The committee will first meet in the morning and in the afternoon the conference with Mr. Emerson will likely be held.

LUMBERTON NEWS NOTES.

Recruits for Robeson Roads—Distressing Accident—Other Items.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., Nov. 9.—Superior Court in session here this week was largely attended. Several cases of minor importance have been disposed of and several added to the road force. A murder case is being tried today.

The Donnelly & Hatfield Minstrels played Tuesday night to the largest audience ever assembled in the opera house. Many were unable to obtain even standing room. Good shows are liberally patronized here.

A distressing accident occurred here yesterday in which Mrs. Dr. McPhaul was painfully burned. She kindled a fire in the kitchen stove preparatory to cooking dinner and while standing near a piece of wood which was evidently loaded with gunpowder, exploded with sufficient force to knock off the whole top of the stove. Mrs. McPhaul was badly burned about the face and it is feared one of her eyes is permanently injured though it will be several days before this can be determined.

One of the busiest places around Lumberton is the oil and ginning plant here. It is running day and night and yet it is hard to keep anything like up with the work——Yesterday morning was the coldest of the season, ice having formed in many places——Miss Mattie Lee Pittman entertained at her home last night from 8 to 11:30——An affair of much pleasure was a reception given at the home of Mr. Mike Caldwell Thursday evening in honor of their guest, Miss Edwards, of Latta, S. C.

GOVERNOR EXPLAINS

Out With Another Statement in Regard to That Atlanta Conference.

OTHER RALEIGH NEWS NOTES

Bank at Mount Olive Chartered—State Auditor Off For Columbus, Ohio. Governor Glenn Back From Davidson.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 9.—In a statement this afternoon Governor Glenn said his attention was being called to articles in various newspapers in regard to the object of the Governors conference at Atlanta and his position toward the railroads. He issues the following:

"Governor Comer invited me to confer with himself and Governor Smith in Atlanta. Personal members of the council of State and the State's attorneys advised me to go. On arrival we discussed the laws of the various States to see how far there was uniformity. Governor Comer then submitted a proposition from the Southern Railway in regard to inter and intra-State rates, but there was a feeling that the Governors were simply executive officers with no right to change the laws or take upon themselves the duties of the Corporation Commission we took no action whatever looking to changing the laws. We did discuss methods by which the present laws may be enforced and about a method in how the inter-State rate might be made uniform.

"Some people don't seem to understand the object of my conference with President Finley of the Southern. Some have taken it that it was an attempt to modify the law. Any lawyer or business man readily understands that I have no power to change ar amend the rate passed. This can only be done by the Legislature. The proposition submitted to the Southern Railway, and which I think is fair and just, was to let the railroad stop its suit and the State stop its suit, thereby producing harmony and good will between the people and the railroads. Then let the railroads give the present rate a fair test six or eight months, seeing in that time whether or not an increase of travel will enable them to make much of more than heretofore, or at least to be in no sense confiscatory, but if it was found it was greatly injurious, or confiscatory, the Legislature would be called together to change the rate. The law passed by the last Legislature should be obeyed until fully tested. The railroads should submit to the law without taking action in the courts for a sufficient period to ascertain its results, then if it proves injurious call on the State to remedy the wrong, and if the State sees any wrong has been done, it will readily remedy any evil. I feel that such a course would bring about peace and harmony and I hope the railroads will see the wisdom and agree upon this line of action."

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh N. C., Nov. 9.—A charter is issued for the Citizens Bank of Mt. Olive, capital $15,000, by J. E. Kelly, R. J. Southerland and W. F. Martin. The bank is authorized to do a general banking and savings business.

State Auditor B. F. Dixon will leave tomorrow for Columbus, Ohio, where he will attend the National Association of State Auditors and Tax Commissioners for the consideration of methods of bringing about a uniform system of taxation for all the States of the union. Problems of local taxation in the counties will also be considered. In fact the whole structural details of taxation in the various States will come up for analysis. The conference is regarded as one of the most important and far reaching that has been held in many years.

Governor Glenn returned this morning from Davidson College where he delivered the address for "Davidson Day" yesterday and also addressed the Y. M. C. A. of the college. He had expected to be out of Raleigh until 6:30 this evening but unexpectedly caught a train that put him back here this morning and the advantage of an unexpected days work in the executive office. He says he was delighted with what he saw of Davidson, his beloved alma mater, and that wonderful advances have been made in every department of college work and equipment since he matriculated there 36 years ago.

Stole Flour and Eggs.

Levi Huggins, a young negro man employed at Warren's Steam Bakery on Front street, was seen slipping a bag of flour and a bucket of eggs out the rear of the store yesterday morning, the property being later left in the restaurant of Ed McDuffie, colored, in the Purcell alley. Mr. Warren was informed of the theft and a warrant for his arrest was sworn out before Justice Furlong with the result that Constable Savage soon had him in tow. He was sent to jail in default of $50 for his appearance at the next term of court.

YOUNG ACTOR RELEASED

David Leboy Discharged From Custody Upon Affidavit of Victim of Friday Morning Accident—His Condition Improving.

Upon affidavit secured by Justice of the Peace John J. Fowler from young Francis Marion at the hospital yesterday afternoon to the effect that the shooting of the latter by David Leboy Friday morning was purely an accident and upon the further strength of reports from the hospital last night that the patient is doing remarkably well and seems now to have about an even chance for recovery, Mr. Leboy was last night at 10 o'clock paroled in the custody of Mr. Fowler, who has taken the young man through sympathy to his home and will entertain him there until there is a call for his presence before the authorities either in the event that the victim of the accidental shooting dies or that he recovers.

Young Leboy remained at the police station all day yesterday and his friends employed Louis Goodman, Esq. to defend him or to see what could be done to accomplish his release from custody. Upon the advice of the City Attorney, the Mayor declined to allow Mr. Leboy to go without the $500 bond, pending an official investigation of the shooting, but upon the affidavits being secured by Mr. Fowler from the victim of the deplorable accident, the case was presented in a different light and Mr. Leboy was released as stated. He was glad to secure his freedom, but is still, of course, very much exercised over the condition of young Marion. Dr. Slocum stated to a reporter of the Star last night that the young man was doing very much better than he expected; in fact, he gave every indication of recovery.

The mother of young Marion at Selma, Ala., was notified by telegraph of the accident to her son and a telegram was received yesterday afternoon from a friend stating that she would be here on the first train. She will probably arrive sometime today. Out of consideration for his mother young Mr. Leboy would not let his people know in Philadelphia of the trouble he was in, else he might have given bond at once through friends in his home city.

THE HAM REVIVAL

Three Services at the Church and One at Academy Today.

The series of revival services being conducted at the First Baptist Church by Evangelist Mordecai F. Ham is increasing in interest and the attendance upon three services in the church today is expected to be unusually large. There will be the usual preaching at 11 A. M. and 7.30 P. M. and at 10 o'clock this morning there will be a service in the interest of the Sunday School teachers and larger pupils; also workers in the meeting and those who are interested especially in others. The unsaved will also find a cordial welcome awaiting them at this service.

Although Evangelist Ham has dealt largely with church members during the week, those not professing Christians have been greatly benefitted. While the meetings are intended as a great religious revival, the subject of prohibition is frequently emphasized from a moral viewpoint. Additional temperance songs are being learned by the "Junior Choir" of 150 children, who will soon make another tour of the city in one of the large cars of the suburban line.

Pastor Hale is much enthused with the meeting and says that Mr. Ham believes in the old apostolic Holy Spirit meetings, without the extremes of modern fanatics and slowly but surely, he is waking the congregation up to what he calls the Scriptural truth as to the Christian's experiences, and privileges and obligations. He says the church selected Mr. Ham for this series of meetings, knowing his style of preaching, and methods of work, not that the interest of the Baptist church alone should be built up, but that the Kingdom of God as a whole should be built up in the community, both from the religious and the temperance point of view.

Personal Difficulty Yesterday.

A personal difficulty between Mr. Louis T. Moore and Mr. B. B. Jackson, both prominent young men of the city, yesterday at noon, near Second and Princess streets, caused some excitement for the time being. It appears that Mr. Jackson had made some remark in a down town cafe the night before which incensed Mr. Moore when he heard of it yesterday. He went to the office of Mr. Jackson, called him out, and words led to a lively fisticuff on the sidewalk in which neither party was seriously injured. Friends pulled them apart and Justice George Harriss, who was among the bystanders, arrested both of them, later setting the case for a hearing on Monday at 10 A. M.

Memorial Window Unveiled Today.

The memorial window to the late Dr. Patterson will be unveiled and consecrated in St. John's church at the 11 o'clock service today. His friends and comrades are cordially invited to attend.

SECOND OFFER MADE

Committee Makes Recommedation That $140,000 Be Paid For Water Works Plant.

SAME TERMS AS BEFORE

Aldermen in Special Session Accept This and Proposition Will Go to Company—Lease or Sale of Encampment Site.

Accepting the recommendations of members of the Water and Sewerage Commission who had been appointed as a committee of citizens to investigate the present earnings of the property and make report of same with their findings, the Board of Aldermen in special session last night at the City Hall unanimously decided to make the Clarendon Water Works Company a final offer of $140,000 for its plant under the same terms and conditions, effective as of November 1st, as were stipulated in the former offer of $155,000, which was rescinded by the Board when it was ascertained that the net earnings were not $16,000 per year as they were before the filter plant was installed. The committee submitted a written report of its findings and this was adopted, carrying with it the recommendations to purchase as stated above. A member of the committee stated it as his firm belief that this offer would be accepted by the company and that the city would have the plant under municipal ownership before Monday night.

The Board was called to order at 8:30 o'clock in the Mayor's office, across the hall from the city court room, where the sessions are usually held. Mayor Springer presided and members present were Aldermen Karr, O'Brien, Wood, Ellis, Northrop, Bolles, French, King and Jewell. There were also present all three members of the Water Commission, who as a committee of citizens had been appointed to investigate the present earnings of the water plant and report back to the Board their findings with any recommendations they may have to make in regard to a purchase of the property. This committee consists of Colonel Walker Taylor, chairman; Messrs. M. W. Jacobi and C. W. Worth. There were also in attendance upon the meeting City Attorney Marsden Bellamy, Jr., and several citizens, who came down to hear what the committee had to report, for absolutely no intimation, not even to the Mayor and Aldermen, had been given as to the probable recommendations that would be made. The Mayor stated that the object of the meeting was to receive the report of the special committee appointed last Monday to investigate the water works situation.

Colonel Walker Taylor, chairman of the committee, arose and briefly stated that the committee had purposely and studiously avoided communication with anyone whatever in regard to the report and read the same as follows:

To His Honor, the Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

Gentlemen: Pursuant to your resolution the undersigned "committee of citizens" have investigated "the present earning capacity" of the Clarendon Water Works as evidenced by their books, which were cheerfully furnished us.

The Present earnings would naturally confine our attention to its last year's financial operations. We have made no investigation of its physical condition. We found from its books:

Gross income from all sources..		$33,103
Expenses of operating..	$22,412
Interest on bonds	4,800
Interest on floating debt	393	27,605
Net		$ 5,498

This shows a profit in operation alone, not including interest charges, of practically $10,700 which will probably be increased in the future as the operation of the filter will be more economical.

After an analysis of the figures in every way, the committee has decided that a recommendation as below will be fair and equitable to both sides.

We would recommend that your board, with approval of the Board of Audit and Finance, make a proposition to the Clarendon Water Works Company, that you will make a contract with them to purchase the plant on the same terms, conditions and date agreement as before, only altering the sum proposed from $155,000 to $140,000

Respectfully submitted,

WALKER TAYLOR,
C. W. WORTH,
MARCUS W. JACOBI.

Mr. French asked Colonel Taylor to enlighten the Board as to how the committe arrived at the figure of $140,000. Colonel Taylor stated that this had been arrived at by a process of reduction in proportion to the net earnings as the Board had understood them and as they actually were found to be. He explained this in detail.

Mr. Worth spoke briefly in regard to the matter and Mr. French asked further for information in regard to what the city would actually pay and Mr. Worth stated that the terms of the purchase would be exactly as they were before; it was merely a change

ONE MAN POWER.

Within the past week the United States Steel Corporation, known as the Steel Trust, absorbed the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, the latter a corporation with millions of capital and vast holdings of iron and coal property in the South. It was said that the Tennessee company was a sound and money-making institution and just why it was necessary for the Steel Trust to take it in does not appear, unless, forsooth, it was to eliminate competition and further monopolize the steel and iron business of this country.

Be this as it may, the Steel Trust gobbled it, after letting President Roosevelt know it before hand. The Star's Associated Press dispatch from Washington one day the past week very briefly mentioned a conference between President Roosevelt and the steel magnates, but the dispatch stated that all hands were shut mouth about the matter.

While no statement was given out from the White House about the object of the visit of the Steel Trust people to the President, it crops out that they went there to feel the President to see if he would act ugly about it. Perhaps that part of it is better told in an editorial in the Philadelphia Public Ledger of last Wednesday, which editorial notes this peculiar occurrence and makes upon it a comment that is worthy of serious thought. Says the Public Ledger:

"L'etat, C'est Moi." The famous remark attributed to Louis XIV, 'The State! That is my self!' must naturally recur to many minds in connection with contemporary American history. That the welfare, nay, the very existence of vast industrial enterprises, the stability of public credit, and the confidence of the people, should depend upon the action or the favor of a single individual, no matter how exalted he may be, constitutes a condition of affairs that may well give pause to the thoughtful student of the modern fruits of democracy. It certainly represents a condition which was never contemplated by the framers of our form of government, and one that is without question ultra-constitutional. So long as the Republic continues to be governed by written law, and so long as the functions of government continue to be specifically apportioned among Executive, legislature and judiciary, the presence of the nation's captains of industry at the White House, seeking the approval of the Executive for this or that project of industrial or financial expansion, constitutes an anomaly which conceivably becomes dangerous to the free institutions of the country.

"The particular instance which has suggested this train of thought was the visit to the President by two officers of the United States Steel Corporation to ascertain whether he would prove hostile to the proposed absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company by that corporation to avert further national financial disasters. It might be asserted that there was no suggestion of executive usurpation, but the circumstances is peculiar."

The Public Ledger speaks more fully upon this subject and the article serves to call attention to what Democrats have always claimed is a dangerous tendency of our National affairs. Our Philadelphia contemporary should have noted that just such a condition of affairs as it considers more or less alarming is the result of the centralization policy of the Republican party. It is the Hamiltonian theory or policy of government being carried to extremes, and "democracy" is in no way responsible for it. It is the opposite of the Democratic idea of government and the Democratic idea was evolved from the actual experiences of European governments which became centralized, plutocratic, autocratic and tyrannical as they got further from the people and one man power held sway.

DAYS THAT WERE.

Mr. Red Buck Bryant of the Charlotte Observer is a raconteur whom everybody in the State likes to read after. Recently there came news to the Observer's business office that one Mr. H. H. Covington, aged 65 years, had been licensed to preach at Dockery's Church, near Roberdel, in Richmond county. This revived fragrant memories in the cranium of Mr. Red Buck, for witness the following from the local columns of his paper:

"There is a reporter on The Observer, who, in the spring of 1896, attended the famous Dockery-Russell convention at Maxton, and he recalls a tall, lithe sharp-featured man of many summers and a shock of grayish whiskers, named Henry H. Covington. The Observer man is under the impression that the "Rev. H. H. Covington of Roberdel." is "Speaking Henry," of the Maxton meeting.

"It will be recalled by all good and law-abiding citizens that the Maxton convention was about the liveliest political convention ever held in this State. The friends of Col. Oliver H. Dockery and Judge Daniel L. Russell, the candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, were bestirring themselves in their behalf. The endorsement of the Maxton convenconvention of the old shoestring distinct, in which the two candidates lived, almost meant the nomination at the State convention.

"There were warring factions at Maxton that day. When the Dockerites and the Russellites claimed a permanent chairman each, the first blood appeared on the moon. While the elements were warring with each other Mr. Henry H. Covington, with trousers and coat sleeves cut short and words cut long, was haranguing the mob for Dockery. Rich Lilly, a long, limber, black negro, with damp lips, stood behind him and made gestures with him, he being in full sympathy with his remarks and his candidate. Some man in the main part of the hall cried out, "Take the d—d long-legged rascal down from there!" meaning Covington, and no sooner had he said the words than did a burly negro from Wilmington, a Russellite, start up and make ready to lay violent hands on the bare shanks of the speaker. But Lilly ducked beneath Mr. Covington's outstretched arm and landed one on the approaching negro's face, felling him to the floor. Having done his part well Rich stepped back to The Observer man and inquired: "Did you see me knock dat nigger down? Is I actin' lak er deligate? Ef I is, put it in de paper?"

"By that time the fight was general and The Observer reporter bolted. If 'Rev. H. H. Covington' is one and the same with "Henry H. Covington" he should make a good preacher."

That picture is an accurate one and the story is told in an immitable manner.

FAIRS SEEM TO PAY.

Promoters of the Wilmington Fair Association and those who are being solicited to subscribe to the capital stock of the enterprise will doubtless be interested to know that the Mecklenburg Fair Association has just declared a dividend of 36 per cent. In addition to that the Association has passed between 40 and 50 per cent. to the surplus fund which will ultimately be made use of in the purchase of additional grounds and facilities. It is true that the directors of the Mecklenburg Fair are threatened with indictment for a rather wide-open midway, about which the city of Charlotte is agog, but there is no questioning the financial success of the fair.

Let Wilmington get in the push with a big fair next Fall.

—Statesville, N. C, Nov. 8—A young woman of Iredell has secured a husband from an extreme section of our country through a matrimonial agency. The young woman is Miss Grace Miller and the groom is Mr. James E. Cook. They secured license Wednesday afternoon and it was understood that the ceremony had been performed. Miss Miller is a daughter of Mr. P. T. Miller, of Shiloh township, and the groom is a stranger from far-away San Francisco, Cal. They had never seen each other until the groom arrived here last Sunday. That the marriage of these young people came about through an advertising matrimonial agency is admitted, but the correspondent has heard two stories of how it all came about and both stories come from neighbors of the young woman. One story has it that Miss Grace Miller and sister, Miss Edna Miller, advertised for husbands through a matrimonial agency, and that by agreement two men, Mr. Cook and another from some far-away State came to Statesville Sunday and went to the home of the bride's father. Miss Grace, who is only a little more than 15 years old, was well satisfied with her man and agreed to marry him, but her sister, who is older, would not agree to marry her man and he left broken-hearted. The other story has it that the young women answered the advertisements of the men and that Miss Edna's man is not to arrive until Christmas and that he is from Texas. Both tales are interesting. It is a pity that our girls can't get husbands at home. And it looks foolish for a woman to accept a man for a life-long companion whom she has never seen before.

A Big Boiled Dinner.

Cooks in large hotels and boarding houses may think they get up meals on a big scale, but when it comes to wholesale cookery the little village of Liss, on the London and Southwestern railway, England, surpasses them all. At a barbecue held there some years ago an ox was boiled, not roasted, whole, and this is how it was done: A large hole was dug in the ground and lined with brick. Inside this a tank large enough to hold the ox was built. The carcass was then lowered into the tank, having first been placed in a case formed by heavy crossbars, to which chains were attached. Pulleys from a scaffolding above were used to raise and lower the ox. Many vegetables, such as carrots, onions, cabbages and potatoes, were boiled with the meat. The boiling required seven hours.

Not Quite Clear.

A well known clergyman of Boston was once talking to some friends with reference to the desirability of chronological coherence in ideas in the form of written statements, when he observed that there are times when this method becomes a trifle too suggestive.

"For instance," said the speaker, "I once heard a minister in New Hampshire make his usual Sunday morning announcements as follows:

"'The funeral of the late and much lamented sexton takes place on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

"'Thanksgiving services will be held in this chapel on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.'"—Lippincott's.

Don't Be Too Thoughtful.

Some people are often accused of being thoughtless, but better that should happen sometimes than always being regarded as too thoughtful. The habit of thinking too deeply on every item has an immense amount of failure at the bottom.

Whether it was best to learn shorthand or a language perplexed one individual for seven months. He could not make up his mind as to which he would derive the most advantage from. He might have learned any one of those accomplishments in the time he took to think about it.

This is the case with many people, and Fortune has an awkward habit of crushing the too thoughtful just as much as the thoughtless.—London Answers.

What Is Sound?

The natural question, "What is sound?" opens up a world of mystery and of delight to those that like that sort of thing. Anything that sets up vibrations in the air, where there is an ear to receive them, makes a noise. An alarm clock in a vacuum jar may whir ever so busily, but it makes no noise. There must be air or there is no sound, and there must be an ear to carry the vibrations to the brain or there is no noise.—Delineator.

TOKYO'S SLUMS.

Worse Than the Worst In Paris, London or New York.

Tokyo has slums whose poverty reaches the last depth of human degradation. Below the cellars of Paris, the alleys of London and the crowded slums of the New York east side, the Japanese capital reveals a lower gulf. It is a region that no ray lights. Your moldy man of Paris and your "hooligan" of London do have at times fierce joys and moments of acid pleasure, but the microscopic intensity of the distress in the Shitaya quarter of Tokyo bars out all hope. Tokyo has far too many poor people, and their disposition is a pressing problem. Thousands are shipped to Korea and Formosa, but the pressure steadily increases owing to the constant migration of ambitious Japanese from the provinces to the capital city.

Japan carefully avoids all public reference to these great sores on its body politic. Their existence is hidden from the foreign visitor. Rarely does a tourist see the slums, and specialists studying the city for precise information are sedulously kept out of the poorest quarters. Japan is so skillfully press agented that the existence of these miserable purlieus is not even suspected by the average student of conditions. It is a journalistic rule in Japan not to say anything that betrays weakness in the life of the people, and it is a rule generally observed. But there are writers in Japan who think that in adopting the civilization of the occident the republican form of government should also have been imported, and these give the ministry trouble at times by telling plain, unpalatable truths. The Kokumin newspaper detailed a representative to live the life of the lowest and poorest in Tokyo, and his articles dealing with life in the Shitaya district created an immense sensation. When translated into English in pamphlet form the government promptly bought up the entire edition and destroyed the plates. —Walter J. Kingsley in World's Work.

How the Water In Great Salt Lake Treats the Bathers.

Bathing in Great Salt lake is a unique experience.

Flights of steps lead down into the water from the interminable platform along which the bathhouses are situated. The water is quite shallow at first, and you find a rare enjoyment for a time in wriggling your toes about in the salt that forms the bottom in place of accustomed sand. You are obliged to wade out some distance before you experience the peculiar buoyancy of the lake. First you feel your feet trying to swim out from under you. You find it more and more difficult to walk. You begin to float in spite of yourself. Then you realize you are nonsinkable. You can't sink if you want to. Throw yourself on your back or sit down or try to swim, and you bob about like a rocking chair in a freshet. You feel as though you had been turned to cork. You can't help looking at the phenomenon subjectively. You don't see that there is anything peculiar about the water. It looks and feels like any other bathing water—until you get some of it in your eyes or in your mouth. Then you wish you hadn't come. Ocean water is sweet in comparison. In fact, the chemists tell us it is eight times less salty.

You can't drown in the lake by sinking, but you can be suffocated to death, which is just about as uncomfortable and undesirable. We found signs everywhere warning us against being too talkative or too frolicsome in the water.

When we came out we brought with us large deposits of salt on our skin. As the water evaporated we found ourselves covered with white crystals. Only a strong shower bath of fresh water or a good clothes brush can put you into fit condition to dress.—Travel Magazine.

Weighting a Horse's Stern.

Some of the officers and men of a vessel once anchored in the harbor of Funchal, Madeira, went ashore for a horseback ride around the island. About halfway up the mountain we came across a little mizzentopman, flushed and evidently very warm, riding a spirited little horse with a stone tied up in a silk handkerchief slung to his tail.

The first lieutenant laughed and said, "What are you doing with that handkerchief, Brown?"

"Why, you see, sir," said Brown, "that when I first hitched her up she pitched badly, being too much by the head, so I just rigged this stone on aft and brought her down to her bearings, and she sails now like a clipper, sir."—"On a Man-of-war."

PANIC!

LOOK!

An Important Personal Word From

W. J. PENNY & CO.

TO THE PUBLIC

As is well known the great scarcity of money and the failure of a great many banks have brought about a condition of PANIC not only in the stock market, but in all lines of merchandising. Money is needed badly by everybody everywhere and by US as badly as by anybody. To get it people are sacrificing everything—Stocks Goods, anything to raise money. Taking advantage of this condition we have arranged a gigantic PANIC SALE to commence Wednesday, November 13th.

You all remember our great Crushed sale of last year, in which all records for low prices and big sales were beaten by us. Well we intend to beat that great record all to smash. We can only do this by making a new level of low prices for the discriminating Wilmington buyers.

To their judgment we submit our prices quoted elsewhere and are confident that we will get their business.

(Signed) W. J. PENNY & CO.

A marriage of much interest which is to take place in the near future, is that of Miss Charlotte Duffy to Mr. Frank Backstrom Culp, formerly of Washington, D. C., but now of this city. Mr. Culp has made many friends since he has been in Wilmington, who extend to him their heartiest congratulations. The marriage will take place in December, at the residence of the bride's mother on South Eighth street.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Walker, of Hong Kong, China, will be pleased to learn that they will arrive in this city in a very short time. At present they are the guest of Mr. Walker's sister, Mrs. Robert Jones, in Newbern, N. C. An approaching marriage of much interest is that of Miss Agnes Seabrease to Mr. Clayton Giles, Jr., which is to take place on the twenty-first of November. Miss Seabrease is the daughter of the Rev. Alexander W. Seabrease, and has made many friends since living in this city. Mr. Giles is one of the most popular young men in Wilmington socety, and is decended from one of the oldest families of the Cape Fear section. Invitations to the wedding were received by friends in this city on Tuesday last.

The opening dance of L'Agile Cotillon Club, which took place in the Masonic ball room on Wednesday last, was a very pretty and enjoyable affair, about twenty couples participating. This organization is composed principally of the younger society set of Wilmington, Mr. Paul L. Cantwell being the leader of the club. The hall was beautifully decorated, and many spectators were in attendance to watch the young people glide through the many new and intricate figures of the german. This is the first of the regular monthly germans which will be given by the club throughout the season.

Aside from its most worthy object, which deserves the hearty support of every Wilmingtonian, the contemplated play "A Carnival of Lavender and Old Lace," which will be given under the auspices of the Wilmington Public Library and the North Carolina Sorosis, at the Elks' Temple on the evening of December 4th, will undoubtedly prove to be an unusual social success. The object of the play is to benefit the Public Library, and it is sincerely hoped that the "carnival" will meet with the success which it so well merits. From a social aspect, this affair will contribute largely to the pleasures of the season, and is a source of much pleasant anticipation.

There was a delightful entertainment given by the Brotherhood of St. James on Wednesday night in the parish house, when all of the male members of the congregation and a few others were invited. A special invitation was extended to the Brotherhood of the Church of the Good Shepherd, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The Rev. Mr. Hogue presided at the social session, and among the features of entertainment were several selections rendered by the St. James Quartette, composed of Messrs. Greene Fenley, Joseph Fenley, James W. White and R. H. Bates, and a solo by Mr. Bates. Informal addresses were made by Mr. Walker Taylor, a guest of the Brotherhood, and several members of the Brotherhood. A very interesting address was made by Mr. R. E. Tapp, in which he gave an account of some of the work of the convention of the Brotherhood in Washington City. Later in the evening light refreshments were served.

On Tuesday night the Brotherhood of the Church of the Good Shepherd held an interesting social meeting, at which the special speakers were Col. Walker Taylor and Rev. J. S. Crowley, both of the Presbyterian Church.

In the Methodist Church at Mocksville, N. C., on Wednesday at 5 o'clock Miss Beulah Hardison, a most attractive young woman of that city, became the bride of Dr. Roburton Bally Beckwith, of Lumberton, N. C., in a pretty service by the pastor. Miss Adelaide Gaither presided at the organ and Mr. R. B. Sanford sang just before the entrance of the bridal party "Love Me and The World is Mine." Miss Marion Kelly was maid of honor and Dr. Beckwith was attended as best man by Dr. James Covington, of Wadesboro. During the ceremony which was impressively spoken by the Rev. J. B. Kirk, "Hearts and Flowers" was softly played. The bride is the only daughter of the late Rev. George W. Hardison, of the Western North Carolina Conference, and is much loved and admired wherever she is known. The groom is a prominent physician of Lumberton, a brother of Mr. B. C. Beckwith, a leading attorney of Raleigh, and a nephew of Governor Beckwith, of Georgia. After the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Beckwith left for Jamestown and other points North for a wedding trip, returning from which they will be at home in Lumberton.

Mrs. J. McRee Hatch, of Wilmington, was the dame of honor for Miss Fay Laura Webb whose marriage to Mr. Oliver Max Gardner on Wednesday at high noon in the First Baptist Church was one of the leading society events of the season in Shelby, N. C. The church was beautifully decorated for the ceremony and the musical numbers were rendered by Professor Don Richardson, of Charlotte, the "Flower Song" by Lange having been softly played as the words were spoken by Rev. M. E. Parish that made them man and wife. The bride's sister, Miss Madge Lorena Webb, was maid of honor and little Miss Elizabeth Webb, daughter of Congressman and Mrs. E. Yates Webb, was the pretty little ring bearer. The bride entered upon the arm of her father, Judge James Landrum Webb, Lohengrin's bridal chorous having been rendered by a select number of voices as the party entered the church. Mrs. Hatch wore white lace over pink messaline silk and Miss Webb wore white lace over white tafetta. The bride was gowned in white messaline satin en train, trimmed with Princess lace and seed pearls. Following the ceremony a large reception and buffet luncheon was given at the home of the bride's parents after which the couple left for a wedding trip North.

Wednesday at high noon at Rockingham, N. C., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. C. Everett, a pretty wedding ceremony, performed by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Moore united in marriage Miss Emma Houston Spencer and Mr. George Brandt, who upon their return from a bridal tour North will make their home in Wilmington where the groom has a position with the Atlantic Coast Line railway. The wedding is described as having been one of the prettiest of the season in Rockingham. The home was most attractively decorated and was thronged with friends of the bride and groom. As the guests assembled Miss Nancy Pegues sang most sweetly Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," with Miss Jessie Brewer accompanist at the piano, this being followed by the wedding march to which the bridal party entered. These were Mrs. Houston Spencer, mother of the bride, with Mr. Randolph Pegues; Mrs. Brandt, mother of the groom with Mr. Tom Covington; Miss Mary Pegues and Miss Annie May McLaurin, bridesmaids; Miss Edith G. Yarborough, of Louisburg, first bridesmaid; Mrs. A. C. Everett, sister of the bride, dame of honor, and Miss Brandt, sister of groom, maid of honor. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Leon Brandt, of Greensboro, while little Miss Brandt, of Greensboro, was the flower girl and Master Houston Everett, ring bearer. An elegant luncheon followed the ceremony. Mr. Brandt was formerly of Fayetteville and numbers his friends in this section by the score. The bride is one of the most attractive young women of Rockingham.

Friends of Mr. Frank H. Stedman were pleased to see him in the city during the past week, where he spent several days in visiting his old home.

The marked improvement in St. James choir this year is a source of much pleasure to all who attend services at this historic old church. It is understood that it is the intention to pay more attention to the musical feature of the services at St. James in the future, and particularly to the Sunday night services which occur on the first Sunday in each month. The choir now has for its baritone soloist Mr. James Wesley White, a talented musician of Greensboro, who is gifted with a voice of unusual sweetness and scope. The special musical program for today is as follows:

Morning Service—
Te Deum, by Shepard, in the key of "F."
Jubilate, by Dudley Buck, in "C."
Anthem, "Weary of Earth," by Harris.
Evening Prayer—
Magnificat, by Marks.
Nunc Dimmittis, by Marks.
Anthem, "Abide With Me," by Pike.

It is also understood that the boy choir will be resumed today, and that about ten good voices have been procured. On the first Sunday night in December the choir will render Mendelssohn's beautiful cantata, "Hear My Prayer." The programme for the Christmas music has already been arranged, and will be announced at a later date. In addition to the efficient voices of last year, the choir has also secured the services of Mr. Joseph Fenley, tenor; Mr. Baker, who has a splendid bass, and Mrs. Holden, soprano. Mr. Munson, the efficient organist, will continue his work in this direction, and it is generally conceded that the beauty of the services will be greatly emphasized by the enlargement of the choir and the increased efforts in a musical direction.

Even a book agent sometimes fails of achievement through unforeseen misunderstanding. "Colonel," said one of them affably to a Texan whose record he had looked up beforehand, "those are mighty fine boys of yours."

"The finest in the country, stranger," said the colonel. "The finest in Texas."

"I reckon you buy them anything they want?"

"Why, stranger, I buy them anything they need, whether they want it or not."

"Then, colonel, let me sell you a cyclopedia for them. There's nothing else will do them so much good."

The colonel looked at him in astonishment. "Why, stranger," he said, "them boys of mine don't need any cyclopedia. They ride mules."—Youth's Companion.

Mr. Henry Walters, chairman of the board of directors, and Mr. John R. Kenly, third vice president, with other officials of the Coast Line, have returned from a tour of inspection of the second, third and fourth divisions of the system, including a stop-over in Waycross, Ga., where the magnificent new shops of the company are about to be put in operation.

The Atlantic Coast Line has just issued an attractive folder, with a good picture of the new union station at Charleston on its cover and some interesting data about the city underneath the cut. Fifty thousand copies of the folder will be circulated throughout the country, calling attention to Charleston as a Winter tourist resort and to its advantages as a business location.

The Baltimore Building at the Jamestown Exposition will be taken to the Monumental City and placed in one of the parks there. The committee from the Baltimore City Council which provided the building at the exposition, met during the past week in Mayor Mahool's office, and decided that if a fair price for the structure could not be secured, that it be placed as a whole on a scow and be towed to Baltimore for re-erection in one of the parks. The building cost $15,000, and is so constructed that it could be easily transported as a whole or in sections.

It is stated that orders have been recently issued from Atlantic Coast Line headquarters in Wilmington discontinuing a number of telegraph stations in the smaller towns along its system from Richmond to Tampa. The discontinuance is said to have been made because of certain State legislation and rulings of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, to which all of the railroad operators belong, to the effect that no operator shall work for less than $45 per month, nor so many hours. The station at Cartersville, S. C., is one in point, the smallest station carrying with it the minimum salary regardless of receipts or other occupation of the operator in charge.

The first train to enter Charleston's new Union station will be Southern Railway No. 12 this afternoon from Columbia and Augusta. The first Coast Line train to enter the new structure will be No. 51 from Wilmington, which5 left her at 5:1 o'clock this morning. It will be a happy day for Charleston and a big crowd will be at the new union depot to do the honors. While the Southern will have the distinction of bringing in the first train the Coast Line will dispatch the first train from the new station. This will be the Savannah train, leaving Charleston at 3:15 p. m. today. Mr. C. Gresham will conduct the cafe at the new station, and this is already being fitted up.

Waycross, Ga., is another city that can see no good in all this agitation and hostility towards railroads. At a recent meeting of the Waycross Board of Trade the three Governors in conference over the railway rate litigation at Atlanta were memorialized to cease this drastic legislation and evidence of hostility to the railway lines of the country. The secretary of the meeting directed and sent to Governor Smith at the conference the following telegram: "The Board of Trade of Waycross earnestly hopes that an agreement may be reached at the conference of Governors today, upon as favorable terms to the railroads as may be consistent with the public interest, so as to stop further agitation and restore confidence and insure continued prosperity."

It has been announced that, beginning Sunday morning, November 17, all Southern Railway trains entering and leaving Washington, D. C., will use the new $20,000,000 passenger station, affording the traveling public an opportunity of inspecting one of the world's most elaborate and costly passenger terminals. The trains will enter the city over the company's new double-tracked bridge, across the historic Potomac river, which is nearly a mile wide at this point, and proceed above grade along Maryland avenue to First and South Capitol streets, at which point they enter a double-track twin tunnel under Capitol Hill, at the northern end of which the trains enter the new terminal station, connections being made with diverging lines for all points east and west. The cost of this entire improvement, including approaches, will be about $20,000,000.

ANNIVERSARY OF 1898.

Light Infantry Members Will be Addressed by Dr. McClure.

Members of the Wilmington Light Infantry as it was constituted during the trying period of November, 1898, for their celebration of the anniversary of that occasion in the Masonic Temple Monday night, have secured as the special speaker the Rev. Dr. A. D. McClure, D. D., pastor of Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who will have for his subject, "The Lessons We Learn From Such Events as This We Celebrate." Dr. McClure at the time of the racial troubles here on the tenth of November was chaplain of the Second Regiment to which the Wilmington Light Infantry belongs and both in the late Civil War and in the Guard since that time has borne himself every inch a soldier. He will have an interesting message to deliver Monday night and the "1898 veterans" are to be congratulated upon having him to speak to them.

At the meeting there will also be reminiscences of the 1898 troubles and there will be a spread of refreshments, including barbecue and other substantials. Col. T. C. James, president of the Association, will preside. The annual election of officers will take place at this gathering.

THE REVIVAL GROWING

Evangelist Violett Preaching With Great Power at Tabernacle.

The revival meeting at the tabernacle, Seventh and Orange streets, is growing both in interest and numbers. The house was full against last night and many people attending the meetings are thinking seriously. Evangelist Violett spoke of "Reaping and Sowing." He told his hearers that this was a law of nature, a law of reason a law of conscience, a law of knowledge and above all things, it was a law of God. "Go ahead and have a jolly good time, sow your wild oats, but remember you will reap the harvest," he said. Many are saying that Mr. Violetts is the greatest preacher that ever reached Wilmington and few can direct music better than Professor Marks and few can render a solo better or more touching than Mrs. Violett. The services today are Sunday School at 10 A. M.; Preaching at 11 and 7:30 o'clock. The invitation is "If you enjoy good things that lift you nearer Christ and the higher life, don't fail to attend."

"The Opening of Toyland" will be the feature of a big sale that will start on Thursday, November 14th, at the mammoth stores of George O. Gaylord on North Front Street. This will be a Holiday event of extraordinary interest and the little folks who attend the sale at this time will be greeted by Santa Claus in true Kris Kringle fashion. The store lays claim to the largest assortment of toys and holiday goods in the State and parents are asked to bring the children and take advantage themselves of the great bargains that are to be offered in every department. A few of the values that will be offered on this big occasion will be quoted in a big advertisement that will appear in Tuesday's paper. Watch for it.

LOCAL DOTS.

—Mr. J. B. Huff, principal of High School, will be the speaker at the men's meeting at the Boys' Brigade armory this afternoon at 5 o'clock. All men are invited.

—United States steamboat Inspectors F. B. Rice and J. T. Borden were here yesterday from Charleston and inspected the launch Col. Foster and others of the local harbor craft.

—The schooners Harriet C. Kerlin and J. S. Hoskins were cleared yesterday for New York by C. D. Maffitt, both with cargoes from the Cape Fear Lumber Company.

—By deed filed for record yesterday Chas. H. Bender and others transfered to C. J. Mitchell for $1 and other considerations, one-fourth interest in two tracts of the Mitchell mill property, now occupied by the purchaser.

—The British steamer Invertay, Capt. Haughton, cleared last night for Bremen with the eighteenth cargo of cotton from Wilmington for foreign export this season. It consists of 15,500 bales, valued at $935,000 and is consigned by Messrs. Alex. Sprunt & Son.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Hospital Circle of the King's Daughters will be held at the residence of Mrs. Chadbourn, 117 South Third street, on the morning of Tuesday, the 12th, at 11 o'clock. A full attendance is requested as officers will be elected at this meting.

—There was but one case before the Mayor yesterday. Mr. A. C. Ewing, chaffeur for Mr. James Sprunt, was charged with exceeding the speed limit around Front and Princess streets Friday afternoon in his haste to get a guest to The Orton in time to meet an engagement. The chaffeur was taxed with the costs.

—Mr. Neil Baxley and family have removed to the city from Lumberton and are living at 506 Castle street. Mr. Baxley has taken a position with Mr. B. M. Lehue, proprietor of the Orton barber shop. Mr. Baxley followed his trade fourteen years in the town of Maxton and is a thoroughly skilled and cler workman. Mr. Lehue accounts himself fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Baxley.

—There is local interest in the fact that the British steamer Tabaristan, which arrived a day of two ago for cargo of cotton, is one of the fastest freighters afloat, having a mean average speed of seventeen knots an hour. This is her maiden voyage, she having gone from the shipyard with a cargo of dates to New York and from the latter port she came here for cotton. She is 390 feet long, which is something over the longest city block.

—The steamer Theodore Weems, Capt. Hall, was in port yesterday from Baltimore and cleared in the afternoon for Charleston and Georgetown, S. C. Capt. Hall reluctantly said good-bye to many friends at this port as this is the last trip of the Baltimore steamer to this port as was announced a few days ago. She brought a good miscellaneous freight for Wilmington merchants and those of the interior, but Capt Hall said the last trip from Georgetown and Charleston he left more freight piled up on the wharf than he carried and as this traffic can be handled cheaper than from Wilmington the company had decided to run, temporarily, at least, only to those ports.

"CHUM OF ROOSEVELT."

Queer Hallucination of White Man Examined for Lunacy Yesterday

E. H. Scott, the white man taken in custody Thursday night by Deputy Sheriff A. T. Piver upon affidavit of a relative, Mr. Holmes, was before a commission of lunacy at the office of Deputy Clerk of the Superior Court W. N. Harris, yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The unfortunate man who has a wife and several children and who lives at Fifth and Brunswick streets is laboring under the queer hallucination that he is 'a chum of President Roosevelt," a distinction to which he frequently gives expression. The commission yesterday unanimously recommended his admission to the hospital for the insane at Raleigh and the papers have been forwarded to that institution. Scott some few years ago helped to rig up the scaffold in the jail upon which the negro mutineer Scott was hung and it was probably there that his intimacy with the president found lodgment in his diseased mind.

of the basic figure from $155,000 to $140,000.

Mr. Jacobi thought the arrangement was perfectly fair to the city and to the water works company.

Mr. O'Brien asked and was told that the filtration plant was what had so heavily increased the cost of operation. More fuel and higher prices for labor and materials had increased since the filter plant was put in. Mr. Jacobi gave the actual figures for both 1906 and 1907.

Mr. Bolles asked if the committee found that the company kept its operating expenses monthly. Colonel Taylor stated that the accounts were kept quarterly and that the last quarter ended October 1st. Mr. Bolles brought out that Engineer Ludlow's estimate of earnings were made in July of this year and with the statements of three quarters before him, he should have been able to more accurately estimate the probable earnings for the year.

Mr. Wood thought that the city should not have to fill out water rentals that the company had already collected. Colonel Taylor explained that the Board had already taken action as to taking over the plant. November 1st, and it might be well to make no change.

Mr. King said that he thought there should be no change in conditions and moved that the report be adopted and the offer of $140,000 be made. This was seconded by Mr. Northrop.

Mr. Bolles thought the matter could be simplified by referring the matter to a special committee from the Board or to the three citizens who had just reported, to ascertain whether or not the company would accept the proposition.

Mr. Wood thought the Board should make the company an offer and stand by it; if it was not accepted, then let the city proceed with a new plant.

Mr. O'Brien thought the people of Wilmington would abide by the report of the committee which had just been made and their recommendations should be accepted.

Mr. King spoke further in line with his previous remarks and Mr. Northrop said after this committee had made report, there was not a member of the Board of Aldermen who would vote to pay a cent more and no time would be saved in referring the matter to a committee for further dickering.

Mr. Ellis favored referring the matter to the special committee with instructions to conclude the sale in line with the recommendations included in the report.

The City Attorney suggested that in view of the change in the amount some stipulation should be made as to the execution of the notes for $60,000 instead of $75,000. There would have to be a different distribution of the amount over the three years for which the notes are given. It was explained that this could be easily agreed upon.

A motion was then made that the report of the committee be received and adopted and their recommendation of $140,000 as a basic price for the plant under the former conditions, effective November 1st, be included in an offer to the company, as outlined in the committee's recommendation. This motion was unanimously carried and the matter will go over to a special meeting of the Board of Audit and Finance Monday.

By unanimous consent the Board heard Mr. Bolles read a communication from Mr. Pembroke Jones asking for a purchase or lease of the encampment site on the Sound, which was represented to be going to waste, being depleted of its forestry and otherwise being reduced to nothing more than a barren sand waste. Mr. Jones offers to lease the property for a term of years and enclose it with a fence. City Attorney Bellamy was doubtful if the property could be sold or leased and the matter was referred to the Finance Committee for report back to the Board. The City Attorney stated that he would give the committee an opinion on the legal status of the lands. The Board then adjourned.

YOUNG MAN STABBED.

Samuel Parker Assailed by Unknown Person at Market House.

Young Samuel Parker, 16 or 17 years of age, a son of Mr. George W. Parker, Front and Queen streets, while passing Front street market house last night about 9 o'clock was stabbed in the shoulder by an unknown person who ran out of the alley by the Palace Pharmacy, drove a knive into the young man's shoulder and then ran away before he could be recognized. Young Parker says that he thinks he was mistaken for another person as he had had no trouble with anyone and an attack was far from his mind; that he was merely passing along the street with a friend in the Saturday night crowds. He was brought down to Jarman's drug store on Princess street and was later taken to Dr. Akerman's office where the wound was dressed. His injury is quite severe, consisting of a gash about three inches long to the shoulder blade. The police endeavored to ascertain who did the cutting but were unsuccessful.

Attention is caled to the page advertisement of W. J. Penny & Co., which appears in this issue of the Star Thirty thousand dollars worth of high-grade merchandise has been thrown on the counters of this large establishment and these will be offered to the people of Wilmington and the surrounding country, beginning Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. The firm makes the frank announcement that it has thousands of dollars worth of goods to be paid for soon and as money is a consideration in these times of stringency all of these goods will be closed out regardless of selling price. There will be special sensational half-hour sales and a list of bargains is quoted in the advertisement that is bound to appeal to the careful buyers of whatever station. Nothing more needs to be said than to commend a careful reading of the advertisement of this firm, which goes into details fully.

TEN DAYS OF BARGAINS

Interesting Announcement by C. W. Polvogt Company—Ten Days.

"The Store That's always Busy" will be busier than ever beginning tomorrow morning and continuing for ten days. Of course, reference is to the C. W. Polvogt Company, which has an announcement of interest to the buying public elsewhere in tod-day's paper. It is the annual November bargain sale at this popular store and some exceedingly choice values are quoted in an advertisement that appears elsewhere today, the offerings including specials in the Ladies' Suit Department, Table Linens, Dress Goods, Furs, Laces and Embroideries; in fact in every department, the high standard of which at this store has set the pace. Special trading stamps are offered in connection with this sale and this feature alone will be found quite appealing to many. "Time to Loosen the Purse Strings" will be the slogan for this sale and the firm will make it to the interest of all to do this very thing.

Married Last Evening.

A quiet but very pretty marriage ceremony was solemnized yesterday evening at 7 o'clock at the parsonage of Brooklyn Baptist Church when Rev. C. F. Whitlock, the pastor, united in matrimony Miss Janie Gooden, formerly of Clarkton but now an attractive young woman of this city, and Mr. Joseph O. Bullard, a popular young employe of the Atlantic Coast Line shops in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Bullard will reside at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Ed George, No. 911 North Fourth street. They have many friends who will felicitate them upon their happy union for life.

Mrs. Annie M. Jordan Dead.

Friends will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Annie M. Jorden, widow of the late J. C. Jorden, which occurred yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. M. Millinor, No. 2 Meares street. She was in the 63rd year of her age and had been in poor health for five years or more. She is revived by her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs Jesse Gurganus, of Middle Sound; and two children, Mrs. Millinor and Mr. James F. Jorden. The funeral will be conducted from the residence at 3 o'clock this afternoon by Rev. J. S. Crowley.

He Saw the Game.

The office boy had buried countless grandmothers, brothers, sisters, aunts and cousins, but he felt an enthusiasm for the baseball game that day which would not be downed.

Suddenly an idea struck him. Approaching the easy boss with an air of familiarity which had been nurtured by long usage he asked:

"May I leave at noon today, sir?"

"And why, my boy?"

"There is a fancy fair at our church and mother wants me to go this afternoon. She was so anxious that she bought me a ticket which cost a dollar, as she was sure you would allow me the few hours off. I have to assist at the refreshment stall, and it seems a pity to waste"—

"But surely you are above such things as that which take you away from your work. Why not give the ticket to one of your sisters?"

"Well, you see, sir, that wouldn't be fair, for I'm the only one of our family who can be depended upon to eat a dollar's worth, and"—

His supreme nerve won the day.—Smith's Magazine.

An English Amenity.

A striking difference between our manners and those of our English cousins was shown one day at a garden party. The hostess, an American, was speaking to one of her guests, an Englishwoman of rank.

"Dear Lady B.," she said, "here are some sandwiches which I made with my own hands, particularly for you. You know I've often told you about our American sandwiches and how good they are. Here are different sorts, lettuce and cucumbers, if you care for 'grass,' or if you like a savory better try the cream cheese ones with pimentoes. I've some sweet ones, too, raisins and nuts chopped together—which will you try first?"

She held a plate in each hand, a plate filled with dainty looking sandwiches, and they were extended invitingly toward her guest, who looked at them critically, then said in the clear, high pitched voice of the well bred Englishwoman:

"Oh, thank you, so kind of you, but do you know I never touch the nawsty things?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chance For a Home Run.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the classroom. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway.

"It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it."

"You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?"

"It falls."

"But if there were no attraction toward the earth it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"

"My," cried the boy, "what a bully chance for a home run!"—Chicago News.

What He Had to Say.

"Well, George, do you know it is 1 o'clock? What have you to say for yourself?"

"I did have s-s-somethin' to s-say, my dear, b-but you've gone an' s-scared it out of m-my head. Oh, I remember it n-now!"

"Well, what is it?"

"Good night."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Family Jar.

"The body of the late Major Jinks was cremated."

"What they goin' to do with it?"

"His widow has him corked up in a fruit jar. Says it's the last of the family jars."—Atlanta Constitution.

Majesty.

"My wife adores the majesty of the Alps, whereas I the majesty of the ocean," said Pfeif.

"And your daughter?" inquired a friend.

"Oh, she just adores majesty by itself."—Lustige Blatter.

KEEP YOUR HEAD UNCOVERED.

The Constant Wearing of a Hat Propogates Dandruff Germs.

There are many men who wear their hats practically all the time when awake, and are blessed with a heavy shock of hair; yet if the scalps of these same men once became infested with dandruff germs, the parasites would multiply all the quicker for lack of air. Baldness would ensue as the final result. Newbro's Herpicide kills these germs and stimulates unhealthy hair to abundant growth. Herpicide is a pleasant hair dressing as well as a dandruff cure and contains not an atom of injurious substance. Sold by leading druggists. SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—Selma, N. C., Nov. 8.—The barn of Mr. John Futrell, near this town, was burned today, the loss being about three bales of seed cotton, corn, etc., of an estimated value of from $200 to $300.

—Roxboro Courier: The Courier correspondent from Grays Chapel writes that the home of Mr. Geo. Cagle was entered one day last week and robbed. The thief secured between $200 and 300, which was in the house. The family was away from home attending a corn shucking. No further information is given.

—Rocky Mount, N. C., Nov. 8.—Mr. Robert Braswell, of Tarboro, who was here Wednesday night from Wilmington, on his way home, was robbed of his pocket book, as he was leaving on the Norfolk train. He felt the pickpocket at work and upon alighting from the passenger coach, dropped his suit case and caught the thief. He recovered his pocket book and contents, but the tief got away.

—Tarboro, N. C., Nov. 8.—The house of Ed. Roberson, colored, near the Coast Line station between two o'clock yesterday afternoon and dark was entered and robbed. A Colt's revolver and $85 belonging to Roberson was taken. Entrance was effected through a window opposite the house of Marnette Porter, the janitress at the station. Thus far the police and Roberson are without surmise as to the identity of the thier.

—Rocky Mount, N. C., Nov. 8.—The trouble of the outside financial situation has reached Rocky Mount, for the Draper Shoe Company has been forced to close. The business was started in 1905 by Mr. T. O. Draper and has had a large patronage. Mr. Julian Calhoun, of Spartanburg, S. C., has been appointed receiver for the firm. The proprietors will probably resume business as soon as the financial situation is relieved. Mr. Draper is a popular young business man of Rocky Mount, and his friends trust he will be able to resume business.

—Marion, N. C., Nov. 8—About eight o'clock Tuesday night when Deputy Sheriff Ray was returning home from the depot his attention was attracted by cries of children in the neighborhood of the Blue Ridge Furniture factory. Summoning assistance Mr. Ray immediately repaired to the scene to find that Tom Young, colored, had shot his wife. It was a pitiable sight, Mr. Ray said, when he entered the house to find several young children crying for their mother, who lay dead on the floor, the fatal shot having taken effect in the left breast. Young was also lamenting the death. A shotgun and revolver were lying on the floor. When first questioned about the affair Young first said the woman had shot herself with the shotgun, but when this story was ridiculed he admitted that they were involved in a difficulty when the gun was accidentally discharged with the above result. Young was brought to town and locked up.

—The Lexington Dispatch tells of an alleged unusually bold robbery in Salisbury last week. It says that "a citizen of Churchland" tells the Dispatch of a remarkably bold robbery perpetrated within the fair grounds last Wednesday evening at Salisbury, in which Jack Swink, a Greensboro boy, lost $70 and Tom Harris, a Lexington boy, lost $65, both being students at Churchland High School. The Churchland man says the boys had spent the day Wednesday taking in the fair, and were just leaving the grounds with hundreds of others, when three men held them up in plain view of the crowd, drawing their pistols, and ordering them to come across. It was all very quickly done say the boys, and nobody seems to have caught on to it. The robbers were either in too big a hurry or else they were only after money, because the watches of the boys were not demanded, and these they saved from the general wreck and ruin of their financial systems.

—Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 8.—State Republican Chairman Spencer B. Adams has returned from Washington city. He went there, he said, on legal not political professional business. Judge Adams has a large business with the revenue department, often having to go to Washington to get some case compromised where clients have gotten into trouble with the government in the matter of infractions of regulations regarding the manufacture or sale of "sperrits." It is reported that Judge Adams has been "spoken to" to look after the interests of several big whiskey distillers over in Virginia who are being "persecuted" by revenue officers for alleged big frauds against the government. A good many of these accused distillers are old North Carolina manufacturers, former clients of Judge Adams. Some of these left the State on account of the Watts law and some left on account of "being persecuted" here by District Attorney Holton, the Federal court grand juries, Judge Boyd, etc., two and three years ago.

The ominous dry, hacking cough quit before the first bottle was used, and two more bottles made a complete cure." EARLY RISING.

It Is Not Good For Those Who Have to Work Hard All Day.

There is no adequate support for the impression that the early morning hours are in any way more wholesome or healthy than later periods of the day. Except in summer time, they are apt to be damp, foggy, chilly and among the least desirable hours of daylight. It is quite true that during the summer there is a sense of exhilaration about being abroad in these early morning hours, but this evaporates with the dew and is apt to be succeeded by a corresponding depression and loss of working power later in the day. I have been observing my friends and patients for the past twenty years in this respect and am inclined to the opinion that not a little of the depression and nervousness which so commonly develop in hot weather is due to excessive exposure to light, from habits of early rising, inherited from agricultural ancestors, not counterbalanced by three to four hours' rest in darkened rooms in the middle of the day.

Secondly, that the exhilaration experienced during the early morning hours is an expensive luxury, which has to be paid for later in the day. In fact, I have found that, as a general rule, to put it very roughly, the business or professional man who rises an hour before 7.30 or 8 o'clock goes to bed or loses his working power an hour and a half earlier in the evening. Each individual has in the beginning of his day about so much working power stored up in his brain and muscle cells. If he uses this up with great rapidity in the early morning hours he naturally exhausts his stock the sooner in the afternoon or evening.

It is largely a matter of when a man wishes to be at his best. If his occupation is of such a character that he can clear off the brunt of his work in the early morning hours, then let him rise early. If, on the other hand, he requires full vigor and readiness of mind and body in the latter part of the day or at night, then he must rise later to get it. Even in pure muscle work it is false economy to work too long hours. —American Magazine.

AN INGRATE SOLDIER.

His Cowardly Action Was the Making of a Nobleman.

Here is a story of the battlefield. There was war between the Swedes and the Danes. One day a great battle was fought, and the Swedes were beaten and driven from the field. A soldier of the Danes who had been slightly wounded was sitting on the ground. He was about to take a drink from a flask. All at once he heard some one say:

"Oh, sir, give me a drink, for I am dying!"

It was a wounded Swede who spoke. He was lying on the ground only a little way off. The Dane went to him at once. He knelt down by the side of his fallen foe and pressed the flask to his lips. "Drink," said he, "for thy need is greater than mine."

Hardly had he spoken these words when the Swede raised himself on his elbow. He pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot at the man who would have befriended him. The bullet grazed the Dane's shoulder, but did not do him much harm.

"Ah, you rascal!" he cried. "I was going to befriend you, and you repay me by trying to kill me. Now I will punish you. I would have given you all the water, but now you shall have only half." And with that he drank the half of it and then gave the rest t the Swede.

When the king of the Danes heard about this he sent for the soldier and had him tell the story just as it was.

"Why did you spare the life of the Swede after he had tried to kill you?" asked the king.

"Because, sir," said the soldier, "I could never kill a wounded enemy."

"Then you deserve to be a nobleman," said the king. And he rewarded him by making him a knight and giving him a noble title.—"Famous Stories Retold."

Needless Ceremony.

Peter had been hastily bidden to Bobby Hunt's party, and his mother was "rounding him up" in front of the washstand.

"Oh, mother," he said, "do I have to have a whole bath?"

"Certainly."

Peter mumbled something, and his mother asked him what it was.

"I said were you sure it wasn't just your idea," replied Peter. "I'm certain I heard Bobby's mother tell you over the telephone that the party was very informal."—Youth's Companion.

He Knew Them.

Once at an important function at Marlborough House Sir Francis Knollys came up to the Prince of Wales and remarked, "Some gentlemen of the press wish admission, your royal highness."

"Oh," said the prince, "show them in. If they don't come in at the door they'll come in at the ventilator."

In Harness.

"It must be fun," suggested the friend, "to daily daily with these shafts of wit."

"Not when you're hitched between 'em," responded the press humorist, with a sickly smile.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HENRY WALLACE PHILLIPS

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY

"A nice, decent fellow was Kyle. Nothing remarkable, you could say, and that was one of his best points. Howsomever, he had a head that could do plain thinking, a pair of shoulders that discouraged frivoling, and he was as square a piece of furniture as ever came out of a factory. More'n that, he had quite a little education, saved his money, never got more than good natured loaded, and he could ride anything that had four legs, from a sawhorse to old tiger Buck, who would kick your both feet out of the sturrups and reach around and bite you in the small of the back so quick that the boys would be pulling his front hoofs out of your frame before you'd realize that the canter had begun. Nice horse, Buck. He like to eat Jonesy up one morning before Silver and me could get to the corral. Lord, the sounds made my blood run cold! Old Buck squealing like a boar pig in a wolf trap, and Jonesy yelling, 'Help! Murder! Police!' Even that did not cure Jones from sticking his nose where it wasn't wanted. Why, once— But, thunder, it would take me a long while to tell you all that happened to Jones.

"One thing that didn't hurt Kyle any in the campaign was that he was most as good looking for a man as she was for a woman. They made a pair to draw to, I tell you, loping over the prairie full of health and youngness! You wouldn't want to see a prettier sight than they made, and you could see it at any time, for they were together whenever it was possible. Loys was so happy it made you feel like a boy again to see her. She told me in private that it was wonderful how the air out here agreed with her, and I said it was considered mighty bracing and never let on that they proclaimed their state of mind every time they looked at each other. I reckon old Smart Aleck Jonesy was the only party in the township who didn't understand. Kyle used to put vinegar in his coffee and things like that, and if you'd ask him, 'What's that fellow's name that runs the clothing store in town?' he'd come out of his trance and say 'Yes' and smile very amiable to show that he thoroughly admitted you were right.

"Well, things went as smooth and easy as bobsledding until it came time for Loys to be moseying back to college again.

"Then Kyle took me into his confidence. I never was less astonished in my whole life, and I didn't tell him so. 'Well, what are you going to do about it?' says I.

"He kind of groaned and shook his head. 'I dunno,' says he. 'Do you think she likes me, Red?' I felt like saying, 'Well, if you ain't got all the traits but the long ears I miss my guess,' but I made allowances, and says I: 'Well, about that I don't think I ought to say anything. Still, if I had only one eye left I could see plain that her education's finished. She don't want any more college, that girl don't.'

"'Think not?' says he, bracing up. And then by and by they went out to ride, for Jonesy was good to the girl. I'll say that for him. He was willing to do anything for her in reason, according to his views. But Kyle wasn't in them views; he was out of the picture as far as husbands went.

"They came back at sunset, when the whole world was glowing red the same as they were. I reached for the field glasses and took a squint at them. There was no harm in that, for they were well behaved young folks. One look at their faces was enough. There were three of us in the bull pen—Bob and Wind River Smith and myself. We'd brought up a herd of calves from Nanley's ranch, and we were taking it easy. 'Boys,' says I under my breath, 'they've made the riffle.'

"'No,' says they, and then everybody had to take a pull at the glasses.

"'Well, I'm glad,' says Smithy, and darn my buttons if that old hardshell's voice didn't shake. 'They're two of as nice kids as you'd find in many a weary day,' says he. 'And I wish 'em all the luck in the world.'

"'So do I,' says I, 'and I really think the best we could do for 'em would be to shoot Jones.'

"'Man! Won't he sizz?' says Bob. And you can't blame us old codgers if we had a laugh at that, although it was such a powerful serious matter to the youngsters.

"'Let's go out and meet 'em,' says I. And away we went. They weren't a particle surprised. I suppose they thought the whole universe had stopped to look on. We pump handled away and laughed, and Loys she laughed kind of teary, and Kyle he looked red in the face and proud and happy and ashamed of himself, and we all felt loosened up considerable, but I told him on the quiet, 'Take that fool grin off your face unless you want Uncle Jones to drop the moment he sees you.'

"Now, they only had three days left to get an action on them, as that was the time set for Loys to go back to college.

"Next day they held a council behind the big barn, and they called in Uncle Red—otherwise known as Big Red Saunders or Chanta Seechee Red, which means 'Bad Heart Red' in Sioux language and doesn't explain me by a durn sight—to get the benefit of his valuable advice.

"'Skip,' says I. 'Fly for town and get married and come back and tell Jonesy about it. It's a pesky sight stronger argument to tell him what you have done than what you're going to do.'

"They couldn't quite agree with that. They thought it was sneaky.

"'So it is,' says I. 'The first art of war is understanding how to make a grand sneak. If you don't want to take my advice you can wait.' That didn't hit 'em just right either.

"'What will we wait for?' says Kyle.

"'Exercise—and the kind you won't take when you get as old and as sensible as me. You're taking long chances, both of you; but it's just like playing cards, you might as well put all your money on the first turn, win or lose, as to try and play system. Systems don't work in faro nor love affairs nor any other game of chance. Be gone. Put your marker on the grand raffle. In other words, take the first horse to town and get married. Ten chances to one Jonesy will have the laugh on you before the year is out.'

"'I don't think you are a bit nice today, Red,' says Loys.

"'He's jealous,' says Kyle.

"'That's what I am, young man,' says I. 'If I had ten years off my shoulders and a little of the glow off my hair I'd give you a run for your alley that would leave you breathless at the wind up.'

"'I think your hair is a beautiful color, Red,' says Loys. 'Many a woman would like to have it.'

"'Of course they would,' I answered. 'But they don't get it. I'm foxy, I am.' Still, I was touched in a tender spot. That young woman knew just the right thing to say, by nature. 'Well, what are you young folks going to do?' I asked them.

"They decided that they'd think it over until next day, but that turned out to be too late, for what must Kyle do but get chucked from his horse and have his leg broke near the hip. You don't want to take any love affairs on to the back of a bad horse, now you mark me! There was no such thing as downing that boy when he was in his right mind.

"Red, you're a brick. You're the best fellow alive,'" says Kyle.

"Now, here was a hurrah! Loys, she dasn't cry, for fear of uncle, and Kyle, he used the sinfulest language known to the tongue of man. 'Twas the first time I'd ever heard him say anything much, but he made it clear that it wasn't because he couldn't.

"'What will we do, Red? What will we do?' says he.

"'Now,' says I, 'don't bile over like that, because it's bad for your leg.'

"He cussed the leg.

"'Go on and tell me what we can do,' says he.

"'When you ask me that, you've pulled the right bell,' says I. 'I'll tell you exactly what we'll do. I go for the doctor. Savvy? Well, I bring back the minister at the same time. Angevine, he loses the Jersey cow over in the canebreak, and uncle and Angevine go hunting her, for not even Loys is ace high in uncle's mind alongside that cow. The rest is easy.'

"'Red, you're a brick. You're the best fellow alive,' says Kyle, nearly squeezing the hand off me.

"'I've tried to conceal it all my life, but I knew it would be discovered some day,' says I. 'Well, I suppose I'd better break the news to Loys. 'Twouldn't be any more than polite.'

"'Oh, Lord! I wonder if she'll be willing?' says he.

"'No reason I shouldn't turn an honest dollar on the transaction. I'll bet you a month's wages she is,' says I. He wanted to do it, thinking I was in earnest, but I laughed at him.

"She was willing all right—even anxious. There's some women, and men, too, for that matter, who go through life like a cat through a back alley, not caring a cuss for either end or the middle. They would have been content to wait. Not so Loys. She wanted her Kyle, her poor Kyle, and she wanted him quick. That's the kind of people for me! Your cautiot folk are all the time falling down wells because their eyes are up in the air, keeping tabs so that they can dodge shooting stars.

"Now, I had a minister friend up in town, Father Slade by name. No, he was not a Catholic, I think. They called him 'father' because it fitted him. His church had a steeple on it, anyhow, so it was no maverick. Just what particular kind of religion the old man had I don't know, but I should say he was a homeopath on a guess. He looked it. 'Twas a comfort to see him coming down the street, his old face shining in his white hair like a shriveled pink apple in a snowdrift, God blessing everything in sight—good, bad or indifferent. He had something pleasant to say to all. We was quite friends, and every once in awhile we have a chin about things.

"'Are you keeping straight, Re he'd ask when we parted.

"'Um,' I'd say, 'I'm afraid you'd notice a bend here and there if you slid your eyes along the edge.'

"'Well, keep as straight as you can; don't give up trying, my boy,' he'd tell me, mighty earnest, and I'd feel ashamed of myself clear around the corner.

"I knew the old man would do me a favor if it could be done, so I pulled out easy in my mind.

"First place, I stopped at the doctor's, because I felt they might fix up the marrying business some other time, but if a leg that's broke in the upper joint ain't set right you can see a large dark complected hunk of trouble over the party's left shoulder for the rest of his days. The doctor was out, so I left word for him what was wanted and to be ready when I got back and pulled for Father Slade's. The old gentleman had the rheumatism, and he groaned when I come in. Rheumatism's no disease for people who can't swear.

"'How are you, my boy?' says he. 'I'm glad to see you. Here am I, an old man, nipped by the leg and much wanting to talk to somebody.'

"I passed the time of day to him, but felt kind of blue. This didn't look like keeping my word with the kids. I really hated to say anything to the old man, knowing his disposition; still, I felt I had to, and I out with my story.

"'Dear, dear!' says he. 'The hurry and skurry of young folks! How idle it seems when you get fifty years away from it and see how little anything counts! For all that, I thank God,' says he, 'that there's a little red left in my blood yet, which makes me sympathize with them. But the girl's people object, you say?'

"I made that all clear to him. 'The girl's always all right, father,' says I, 'and as for the man in this case, my word for him.'

"Now, it ain't just the right thing for me to say; but, seeing as I've never had anything in particular to be modest about, and I'm proud of what the old gentleman told me, I'm going to repeat it.

"'Your word is good for me, Red,' says he. 'You're a mischievous boy at times, but your heart and your head are both reliable. Give me your arm to the wagon.'

"Then I felt mighty sorry to think of lugging that poor old man all that ways.

"'Here,' says I. 'Now you sit down again. Don't you do anything of the sort. You ain't fit.'

"He put his hand on my shoulder and hobbled his weight off the game leg.

"'Reddy, I was sitting there thinking when you came in—thinking of how comfortable it was to be in an easy chair with my foot on a stool, and then I thought, "If the Lord should send me some work to do, would I be willing?" Now, thanks be to him, I am willing and glad to find myself so, and I do not believe there's any work more acceptable to him than the union of young folk who love each other. Ouch!' says he as that foot touched the ground. 'Perhaps you'd better pick me up and carry me bodily.'

"So I did it, the old housekeeper following us with an armful of things and jawing the both of us, him for a fool and me for a villain. She was a strong minded old lady, and I wish I could remember some of her talk. It was great.

"We went around and got the doctor.

"'Hoo!' says he. 'Is it as bad as that?' I winked at Father Slade.

"'It's a-plenty worse than that,' says I. 'You won't know the half of it till you get down there.'

"But of course we had to tell him, and he was tickled. Funny what an interest everybody takes in these happenings. He wanted all the details.

"'By Jove,' says he, 'the man whose feelings ain't the least dimmed by a broken leg—horse rolled on him, you said; splintered it, probably—that man is one of the right sort. He'll do to tie to.'

"When we reached the ranch the boys were lined up to meet us. 'Hurry along!' they called. 'Angey can't keep uncle amused all day!'

"So we hustled. Kyle was for being married first and then having his leg set, but I put my foot down flat. It had gone long enough now, and I wasn't going to have him cripping it all his life. But the doctor worked like a man who gets paid by the piece, and in less than no time we were able to call Loys in.

"Wind River Smith spoke to get to give the bride away, and we let him have it.

"We'd just got settled to business when in comes Angevine, puffing like a buffalo. 'For heaven's sakes, ain't you finished yet?' says he. 'Well, you want to be at it, for the old man ain't over two minutes behind me, coming fast. I took the distance in ten foot steps. Just my luck! Foot slipped when I was talking to him, and dropped a remark that made him suspicious—I wouldn't have done it for a ton of money—but it's too late now. I'll down him and hold him out there if you say so.'

"Well, sir, at this old Father Slade stood right up, forgetting that foot entirely.

"'Children, be ready,' says he, and he went over the line for a record.

"'Hurry there!' hollers old Bob from the outside, where he was on watch. 'Here comes uncle up the long coulee!'

"'What are your names?' says Father Slade. They told him, both red 'ning.

"'Do you, Kyle, take this woman, Loys, to have and keep track of, come hell or high water, her heirs and assigns for ever?'—or such a matter—says he, all in one breath. They both said they did.

"Things flew till we came to the ring. There was a hitch. We had plumb forgotten that important article. For a minute I felt stingy. The I cussed myself for a mean old long horn and dived into my box.

"'Here, take this!' I says. 'It was my mother's!'

"'Oh, Red, you mustn't part with that!' cried Loys, her eyes filling up.

"'Don't waste time talking. I put through what I tackle. Hurry, please, father.'

"'Has anybody any objections to these proceedings?' says he.

"'I have,' says I, 'but I won't mention 'em. Give them the verdict.'

"'I pronounce you man and wife. Let us pray,' says he.

"'What's that?' screeches Uncle Jonesy from the doorway. And then he gave us the queerest prayer you ever heard in your life. He stood on one toe and clawed chunks out of the air while he delivered it.

"He seemed to have it in for me in particular. 'You villain! You rascal! You redheaded rascal! You did this: I know you did!'

"'Oh, uncle,' says I, 'forgive me!' With that I hugged him right up to me, and he filled my bosom full of smothered language.

"'Cheese it, you little cuss,' I whispered in his ear, 'or I'll break every rib in your poor old chest!' I came in on him a triffe, just to show him what I could do if I tried.

"''Nuff!' he wheezes. 'Quit! 'Nuff!'

"'Go up and congratulate 'em,' I whispered again.

"'I won't,' says he. 'Ouch! Yes, I will! I will!' So up he goes, grinding his teeth.

"'I wish you every happiness,' he grunts.

"'Won't you forgive me, uncle?' begs Loys.

"'Some other time; some other time!' he hollers, and he pranced out of the house like a hosstyle spider, the maddest little man in the territory.

"Loys had a hard time of it until Kyle got so he could travel, and they went up to the Yellowstone with a team for a wedding trip.

"The rest of Loys' folks was in an unpleasant frame of mind too. They sent out her brother, and while I'd have took most anything from Loys' brother, there comes a place where human nature is human nature, and the upshot of it was I planked that young man gently but firmly across my knees. Suffering Ike, but he was one sassy young man! Howsomever, the whole outfit came round in time—all except uncle and me. He used to grit his teeth together till the sparks flew when he saw me. I was afraid he'd bust a blood vessel in one of them fits, so I quit. I hated to let go of the old ranch, but I'm pretty well fixed—I'm superintendent here. It's Kyle's ranch, you know. That's his brand—the queer looking thing on the left hip of that critter, over the vented hash knife. Loys' invention, that is. She says it's a cherublim, but we call it the 'flying flapjack.' There's a right smart lot of beef critters toting that signal round this part of the country. Kyle's one of the fellers that rises like a setting of bread—quiet and gentle, but steady and sure. He's going to the state legislature next year. 'Twon't do no harm to have one honest man in the outfit.

"Now, perhaps if I'd married some nice woman I might have had 1,000 steers of my own and a chance to make rules and regulations for my feller citizens—and then again I might have took to gambling and drinking and raising blazes and broke my poor wife's broom handle with my hard head. So I reckon we'll let it slide as it is. Now, you straddle that cayuse of yours and come along with me, and I'll show you some rattling colts."

CHAPTER III.

READDY was on the station platform, walking up and down, looking about him anxiously. We caught sight of each other at the same time.

"Hi, there!" said he and jumped for me. "Gad-dog your little hide!" he cried as he put my right hand in line for a pension. "I thought I was booked to go without saying goodby to you. You got the note I pinned on your shack?"

"Sure."

"Well, there's time for a chin before the choo-choo starts. Thought I'd be early, not savvying this kind of traveling a great deal. Darned if you ain't growed since I saw you! Getting fat too! Well, how's everything? I didn't say nothing to the other boys about pulling my freight, as I wanted to go sober for once. You explain to 'em that old Red's head ain't swelled, will you? Seems kind of dirty to go off that way, but I'm bound for God's country and the old time folks, and somehow I feel that I must cut the budge out of it. 'Nother thing is I'm superstitious, as you may or may not have noticed, and I believe if you try the same game twicet you'll get just as different results as can be the second time. You heard how I hit it in the mines, didn't you? No? Well, that's so. You ain't seen many people out on the flat, have you? Hum! I don't know principally where to begin. You remember Wind River Smith's pardner that the boys called Shadder, because he was so thin? Nice feller, always willing to do you a favor or say something comical when you least expected it. Had kind of a style with him too. Yes, sir, that's the man. Well, him and me was out in the Bend one day, holding a mess of Oregon half breeds that was to be shipped by train shortly, when old Smithy comes with the mail. 'Letter for you, Shadder,' says Smith and passes over a big envelope with wads of sealing wax all over it. Shadder reads his letter and folds it up. Then he takes a look over the country—the kind of a look a man gives when he's thinking hard. Then says he, 'Red, take off your hat.' I done it. 'Smithy, take off your hat.' 'All right,' says Smith, 'but you tell me why or I'll snake the shirt off you to square things.'

"'Boys,' says Shadder, 'I'm Lord Walford.'

"'Lord Hellford!' hollers Smithy. 'You'd better call somebody in to look at your plumbing. What you been drinkin', Shadder?'

"'Read for yourself,' says Shadder, and he handed him the letter.

"Wish't you could have seen old Smithy's face as he read it. He thought his pardner had been cut out of his herd forever.

"'It's the God's truth, Red,' says he slowly, and he had a sideways smile on his face as he turned to Shadder. 'Well, sir,' says he, 'I suppose congratulations are in order?'

"Shadder's hand stopped short on its way to the cigarette, and he looked at Smithy as if he couldn't believe what he saw.

"'To hell with 'em!' says he as savage as a wildcat, and he jabbed the irons in and whirled his cayuse about on one toe, heading for the ranch.

"'Now you go after him, you jealous old sorehead,' says I. 'Go on,' I says as he started to argue the point, 'or I'll spread your nose all the way down your spinal column!' The only time to say 'No' to me is when I'm not meaning what I say, so away goes Wind River, and they made it up all right in no time. Well, Shadder had to pull for England to take a squint at the ancestral estates, and all of us was right here at this station to see him off. Lord, it seems as if that happened last world! Well, it took a little bit the edge off any and all drunks a ranch as an institution had ever seen before. There was old Smithy crying around, wiping his eyes on his sleeve and explaining to a lot of eastern folks that it wasn't Shadder's fault—gad hook it all! He was the best, hootin', tootin' son-of-a-sea-cook that ever hit a prairie breeze in spite of this dum foolishness.

"'They can't make no "lord" of Shadder!' hollers Smithy. 'That is, not for long. He's a man, Shadder is—ain't cher, yer d——d old gangle legged hide rack?'

"And Shadder never lost his patience at all, though it must have been kind of trying to be made into such a holy show before the kind of people he used to be used to. All he'd say was, 'Bet your life, old boy!' Well, it was right enough, too, as Smithy had nursed him through smallpox one winter up in the Shoshonee country and mighty near starved himself to death feeding Shadder out of the slim grub stock when the boy was on the mend. Still, some people would have forgot that.

"But did your uncle Red get under the influence of strong drink? Did he? Oh, my! Oh, my! I wish I could make it clear to you. The vigilantes put after a horse thief once in Montana, and they landed on him in a butt end canyon, and there was all the stock with the brands on 'em as big as a patent medicine sign, as the lad hadn't had time to stop for alterations.

"'Well,' says they, 'what have you got to say for yourself?' He looked at them brands staring him in the face, and he bit off a small hunk of chewing 'Ptt-chay!' Says he, 'Gentlemen, I'm at a loss for words!' And they let him go, as a good joke is worth its price in any man's country. I'm in that lad's fix. I ain't got the words to tell you how seriously drunk I was on that occasion. I remember putting for what I thought was the hotel and settling down, thinking there must be a lulu of a scrap in the bar room from the noise. Then somebody gave me a punch in the ribs and says, 'Where's your ticket?' and I don't know what I said nor what he said after that, but it must have been all right. Then it got light, and I met a lot of good friends I never saw before nor since. Then more noise and trouble, and at last I woke up—in a hotel bedroom, all right, but not the one I was used to. I went to the window, heaved her open and looked out. It was a bully morning, and I felt A1. There was a nice range of mountains out in front of me that must have come up during the night. 'I'd like to know where I am,' I thinks. 'But somebody will tell me before long, so there is no use worrying about that—the main point is, have I been touched?' I dug down into my jeans, and there wasn't a thing of any kind to remember me by. 'No,' I says to myself, 'I ain't been touched—I've been grabbed—they might have left me the price of a breakfast! Well, it's a nice looking country, anyhow!' So down I walks to the office. A cheerful seeming, plump kind of a man was sitting behind the desk. 'Hello!' says he, glancing up and smiling as I came in. 'How do you open up this morning?'

"'Somebody saved me the trouble,' says I. 'I'm afraid I'll have to give you the strong arm for breakfast.'

"He grinned wide. 'Oh, it ain't as bad as that, I hardly reckon,' says he. He dove into a safe and brought out a cigar box.

"'When a gentleman's in the condition you was in last night,' he says, 'I always make it a point to go through his clothes and take out anything a stranger might find useful, trusting that there won't be no offense the next morning. Here's your watch and the rest of your valuables, including the cash. Count your money and see if it's right.'

"Well, sir! I was one happy man, and I thanked that feller as I thumbed over the bills, but when I got up to a hundred and seventy I begun to feel queer. Looked like I'd made good money on the trip.

"Here's your watch and the rest of your valuables."

"'What's the matter?' says he, seeing my face. 'Nothing wrong, I hope!'

"'Why, the watch and the gun and the other things is all right,' says I, 'but I'm now $50 to the good, even figuring that I didn't spend a cent, which ain't in the least likely, and here's ten dollar bills enough to make a bedspread left over.'

"'Pshaw!' says he. 'Blame it! I've mixed your plunder up with the mining gentleman that came in at the same time. You and him was bound to fight at first, and then you both turned to to lick me, and what with keeping you apart and holding you off and taking your valuables away from you all at the same time, and me all alone here, as it was the night man's day off, I've made a blunder of it. Just take your change out of the wad and call for a drink on me when you feel like it, will you?'

"I said I would do that, and, moreover, that he was an officer and a gentleman and that I'd stay at his hotel two weeks at least to show my appreciation, no matter where it was, but to satisfy a natural curiosity, I'd like to know what part of the country I was at present inhabiting.

"'You're at Boise, Ida.,' says he; 'one of the best little towns in the best little territory in the United States of America, including Alaska.'

"'Well'— says I. 'Well'— for again I was at a loss for words. I had no idea I'd gone so far from home. 'I believe what you say,' says I. 'What do you do round these parts?'

"'Mining,' says he. 'You're just in time—big strike in the Bob Cat district. Poor man's mining. Placer, and durned good placer, right on the top of the ground. The mining gentleman I spoke about is having his breakfast now. Suppose you go in and have a talk with him? Nice man, drunk or sober, although excitable when he's had a little too much or not quite enough. He might put you on to a good thing. I'm not a mining person myself.'

"'Thanks,' says I and in I went to the dining room.

"There was a great, big, fine looking man eating his ham and eggs the way I like to see a man eat the next morning. He had a black beard that was so strong it fairly jumped out from his face.

"'Mornin',' says I.

"'Good morning, sir!' says he. 'A day of commingled lucent clarity and vernal softness, ain't it?'

"'Well, I wouldn't care to bet on that without going a little deeper into the subject,' says I; 'but it smells good at least—so does that ham and eggs. Mary, I'll take the same, with coffee extra strong.'

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, November 9.—The decision to withhold the publication of the bank statement until after the close of the stock market deprived it of what is usually the sole incentive to activity in the Saturday short-session. The consequence was a torpid market and an inconsequential drift of prices. The bank statement made the unpleasant showing of a widening of the deficit below the legal reserve by the amount of $13,085,800, leaving the margin for repair before the legal reserve limit is restored at $51,924,625. The cash showing was not worse than was expected, the decrease of $4,313,000 compared with an indicated decrease of $12,000,000 as far as the known movement of money could be traced. So far as incoming gold may serve to release credits and reduce loans the small proportion of the gold arrivals which figure in the statement leaves the annual result understated.

The New York Clearing House banks estimate that gross shipments of currency made by them to out of town points this week amounted to $21,500,000, last week they were $22,000,000 and the preceeding week $21,500,000, an aggregate for the three weeks of $65,000,000.

Bonds were steady. Total sales par value $1,787,000. United States 2s advanced 1, the 3s, 3-4 and the 4s, 2 per cent in the bid price on the call during the week. Total sales of stocks today were 98,900 shares.

THE COTTON MARKET

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, Nov. 9.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 10 points, the losses being due to lower Liverpool cables. During the early session prices rallied on covering by shorts who were probably influenced by a statement from the December bull clique who claimed that the cotton represented by December contracts was needed for shipment on foreign orders and by the bullish week end figures. December advanced from 10.32 to 10.44 and during the middle of the morning prices ranged about net unchanged to two points higher. The market closed steady with prices net unchanged to 4 points higher.

Receipts at the ports today 53,237 bales against 65,429 last week and 68,627 last year. For the week 360,000 against 363,976 last week and 413,341 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 10,862 against 16,141 last year and at Houston 7,643 against 15,108 last year.

Spot cotton steady; middling uplands 10.80; middling gulf 11.05; no sales.

New York, Nov. 9.—The dry goods market was steadier today with prices on some cottons, silks and dress goods showing a downward tendency.

Manchester, Eng., No. 9.—The week's business in the cloth market was only moderate owing to the unsettled condition of the cotton market and the rise in the discount rate of the Bank of England. Indian offers generall came below the manufacturers' ideas and some contracts are said to have been cancelled, but on the other hand sales were reported for Singapore and Bombay at the late rates. China took a few light cloths but in other directions business was quiet.

SECRETARY TAFT LEAVES MANILA

Remarkable Demonstration in His Honor on Part of Filipinos.

CARRIAGE DRAWN BY BOYS

Military, Civic and School Parade Escorted Distinguished American to Dock—In an Address Taft Expressed Confidence in Islands

(By Cable to the Morning Star.)

Manila, Nov. 9.—The departure of Secretary of War Taft from this city on the cruiser Ranbow for Vladivostok today was attended by a remarkable demonstration on the part of the Filipinos. The horses were withdrawn from the carriage in which were seated Mr. and Mrs. Taft and it was pulled by Manila school boys from the luneta to the dock through cheering crowds of citizens.

Mr. Taft started from the residence of Governor General Smith at 8 o'clock this morning. He reviewed the long military, civic and school parade on the luneta at 9 o'clock, making a brief address in which he thanked the people for their reception, praised the course of the assembly, and expressed his confidence in the future of the islands.

Mr. Taft and part embarked at 11:30 A. M., and sailed at 11:50, the launch on which they were, being escorted down the bay by a flotilla of harbor launches with military and civil officials on board, to the Rainbow where they said their last good byes. Mr. Taft and party expect to arrive at Vladivostok, on November 18, and to leave there on their trans-Siberian journey on November 19. All of the party are in the best of health.

In an interview with a representative of the Associated Press before his departure, Mr. Taft said:

"The condition of affairs in the Philippine government is most satisfactory and, taken throughout, the progress made during the past two years is remarkable. From the first I had full confidence in the legislative assembly, a confidence which has been justified by its actions. So far it has taken a conservative form and I have no doubt it will continue its useful, patriotic and diligent progress. I have yet to see and hear a single member who does not apparently feel a full sense of the responsibility of his duties toward his constituents and country, and I am sure that conservatism will continue to mark the conduct of this body. I leave the Philippines with renewed confidence in the future of the islands. What I have seen and heard on this trip has confirmed my opinions on the subject which I had previously formed and have frequently expressed."

TO FORECLOSE MORTGAGE

Action Against Metropolitan Street Railway Company.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, November 9—An action of foreclosure of a mortgage which it held as trustee against the property of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company was begun by the National Trust Company today in the United States Circuit Court.

The mortgage was given to secure an issue of bonds that should at no time exceed $65,000,000. An action was recently commenced by the Morton Trust Company against the receivers of the Metropolitan asking that the profits and earnings of the road be applied to the payment of interest and lease rentals as provided for in the mortgage.

The receivers by order of the court are made parties to the action.

TEXAS HAS NO READY CASH

Banks Refuse to Pay Out Money on Warrants.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Austin, Texas, November 9—The refusal of the State depository banks to supply the neccessary cash, has forced the State Treasurer to suspend payments of State warrants, all the available funds in the hands of the State treasurer having become exhausted. In the different depositories the State has on deposit $1,504,637, amply secured by approved security and personal bonds. Several of the banks have offered to furnish exchange for the amounts deposited by the treasurer but declare they cannot supply the actual cash.

LADY ON BALLOON TRIP

Big Air Ship Pommern Sailed From Philadelphia Yesterday With Several on Board—Was Last Seen Over New York.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Philadelphia, Nov. 9.— Carrying a woman among his passengers, the big German balloon Pommern, which won the recent international balloon race, made an ascension today from Point Breese in the south section of this city. The woman is the wife of Dr. Julian P. Thomas, of New York, who recently purchased the balloon from its German owner and who was also a passenger. The balloon formerly belonged to Oscar Erbsloeh, who piloted the bag during the day's trip. Others who made the trip included the following:

Captain T. T. Lovelace, a member of the Aero Club of America, Oscar Erbsloeh, and Lieutenant Robert Henderson, chief engineer of the battleship Missouri.

It was announced that because of Mrs. Thomas' presence in the balloon the trip would be only one day's duration. The party intended to make various experiments of interest to balloonists.

The balloon sailed towards the northeast.

Passed Over New York.

New York, Nov. 9.—The balloon Pommern, which ascended from Philadelphia today, descended tonight in a sparsely settled outlying district in The Bronx. The landing was effected safely. The landing was made shortly after dark just beyond the Bronx and was without incident. Dr. Thomas was much pleased with the ease and accuracy with which the balloon was handled, and declared the would enter the next international race.

ABOUT LABOR LEGISLATION

Federation Leaders Confer With President Roosevelt.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, Nov. 9.—President Roosevelt today conferred with President Gompers and the members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor regarding labor legislation at the coming session of Congress. John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers Union, who is ill, was the only member of the council absent. D. J. Shackleton and John Hodge, members of the British Parliament, and fraternal delegates from Great Britain to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor which is to open at Norfolk, Va., next Monday, also were present. After the conference President Mompers said:

"We discussed with the President the questions of labor legislation which has been presented to Congress including the 8-hour day proposition; women and children labor; employers' liability and its extension; the injunction process and the abuses which it has developed. The president discussed these matters freely with us and treated us with every consideration. As to what he will do for labor in his forthcoming message to Congress I prefer he should say himself."

Mr. Gompers would not indicate whether the President had made any promises during the interview. He regarded the interview, however, as "satisfactory."

It was stated at the White House that the President would take the requests of the executive committee under consideration.

ESCAPED ELECTRIC CHAIR

Curious Act of Man Who Was Once Under Sentence.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, Nov. 9.—Only a threat that if he did not desist, he would be returned to the Tombs where for many months he had remained in the shadow of death, prevented Raffaele Cascone from carrying out his vow to walk barefooted and bareheaded from the prison to a church in East 116th Street, there to give thanks for his deliverance.

Cascone was convicted June 3, 1903, of murdering Luigi Sinischatti and was sentenced to death. He spent 32 months in the death house at Sing Sing and was then granted a new trial by the Court of Appeals. He was brought back to New York and since that time has been confined in the Tombs. Yesterday he was acquitted on his second trial and was released today.

While in the Tombs Cascone became the intimate friend of Harry Thaw, the young Pittsburger who is awaiting a second trial for the killing of Stanford White. When Cascone emerged from the building today a number of his friends met him with large candles and he began to make arrangements for his walk of penance through the streets when the police interferred. He went to the church in a cab.

BLACK SHEEP OF FAMILY.

Pennsylvania Man Confesses to Numeruos Burglaries.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Chicago, November 9—Failing to relieve his troubled conscience with strong drink and religion, Anthony Kelty, 43 years old, who says he is the black sheep of a wealthy Pennsyvania family, went to a police station last night and confessed to having committed numerous burglaries. The police believe that he may also know something about the recent murder of James W. Allaway, the Los Angeles, California, commission merchant, who was shot and killed November 5 by a burglar.

One person, an unknown foreigner, was killed and about thirty others more or less seriously injured as the result of a collision on an electric car on the Slatersville road near Woonsocket, R. I., yesterday. A heavily loaded work car became unmanagemeable and slid down a steep hill, crashing into a passenger car that was on the track.

YELLOW METAL DOING ITS WORK

Financial Situation in New York Makes Further Progress Towards Normal.

GOLD IMPORTS $50,000,000

Additional Drafts Made on Europe's Supply—More Treasure Expected This Week—Stocks and Bonds Made Good Advances.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, November 9.—The financial situation made further progress today toward the resumption of normal conditions. Gold was engaged to bring the total for this movement up to more than $50,000,000, an unprecedented acquisition of the yellow metal in the history of New York finance The bank statement was more favorable than had been expected, showing a loss of $4,313,000 in the banks' cash holdings, and the stock market was firm, most of the active shares showing advances on the day's trading.

The bank statement does not show the full benefit of the gold received from London, as the statement is calculated on a basis of averages for each day of the week and the greater part of the gold was received late in the week. Thus a statement of the conditions of the banks at the close of business today would show their cash supplies to be much larger than the average system of commutations. Next week there will be more arrivals of gold and all that received this week will figure for the full week so that next week's statement is expected to show large gains in reserve.

While the deficits in the reserve is fifty-one million dollars it should be noted that the cash on hand is still 20 per cent of all deposits including those made by the government and which are secured by collateral. This is five per cent less than required by the 25 per cent rule but it is five per cent more than local institutions are called upon to maintain under the State banking laws.

No table of advances were made by the active shares in the stock market during the week, today's final sales showing higher prices.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY OVER LOVE

Rejected Suitor Kills Young Woman and Himself.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Infuriated because his offer of marriage had been repulsed Shreve Yaeger, a drunken leather, this afternoon murdered Miss Lena Dobmeier and then almost severed his own head with a razor. Neighbors heard the couple quarreling this afternoon and sent for a policeman. Just as officer John Scott reached the front steps Miss Dobmeier threw open a window and screamed for help. She was pulled back into the room by Yeager. Scott ran up stairs and threw his weight against the door. Inside he could hear the sound of blows and the cries of the woman. When the door finally gave way he saw Yeager standing on the opposite side of the room drawing a razor across his throat. Miss Dobmeier's body lay upon the floor. A keen edged lather's hatchet was buried in her skull, and there were numerous gashes in her shoulder where Yaeger had missed aim. Her left hand was completely chopped off.

COLOR LINE IN PENNSYLVANIA

School Stirred Up Over Chinese Pupil.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 9.—The Oil City school board board is perplexed over the presence of a Chinese student in the public schools. The question at issue is whether the Mongolian is 18 or 28 years old. Members of the board fear complications with China and are awaiting the arrival in Washington of Ambassador Wu Ting Fan. Friends of the pupil say he is only 18 years old and is entitled to the privileges of the schools. Others object to his presence, claiming he is over 25 and should not be permitted to mingle with the young children.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS

Southern Railway Official Became Ill At Salisbury.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, Nov. 9.—J. N. Seale, manager of the Northern and Eastern division of the Southern Railway, was stricken with paralysis while at Salisbury, N. C., Saturday morning and was brought direct to this city where he arrived late tonight. He was so ill that he was not removed from his private car but Mrs. Seale met him at the station and continued by his bedside the remainder of the night. The physician said at 1 o'clock this (Sunday) morning that his patient was resting easily and that his condition was better than it had been.
